Your land is part of your legacy.

Planning its future will help you reach your personal and financial goals and ensure the continuation of the many public benefits it provides. In fact, planning the future of your land may be the most important step you can take as a landowner—for you, your family, and your community.

Now is an excellent opportunity to start planning your legacy, and we would like to support your efforts.

Join us the second Tuesday of the month for a seven-part webinar series for landowners interested in planning the future of their land. Each session will feature relevant professionals to provide information and help answer your questions. You may sign up for individual webinars or the entire series.

We hope you will join us!

Taking the first step: Defining your family's goals for the land

OCTOBER 13, 2020 • 6:30-8:00

Defining your goals for the land is a critical first step in deciding its future. You may not be making decisions alone, and family conversations can be challenging. This session will focus on setting goals and having productive and healthy conversations with your family about the land.

Passing on your land using wills and trusts

NOVEMBER 10, 2020 • 6:30-8:00

Most landowners want to determine who will own their land next. This webinar will focus on using wills and trusts for your conservation-based estate planning.

Valuing your land financially and ecologically

DECEMBER 8, 2020 • 6:30-8:00

Your land has both ecological and financial value. Both are important for conservation-based estate planning. This session will help you better understand these values and how they relate to your conservation-based estate plan. Note: The first 20 registrants will receive a tailored map of their property before this webinar.

Reducing property taxes through Chapter 61

JANUARY 12, 2021 • 6:30-8:00

Property taxes can be a barrier to land ownership. This session will focus on the Chapter 61 current use programs and their role in conservation-based estate planning.

Exploring land protection tools

FEBRUARY 9, 2021 • 6:30-8:00

Are you interested in keeping some or all of your land in its undeveloped, natural state forever? Come learn how land protection tools such as conservation restrictions can help you achieve your goal.

Understanding the tax benefits of conservation

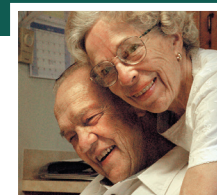

MARCH 9, 2021 • 6:30-8:00

Conservation tools can reduce a number of taxes, including property, federal income, and estate. Find out how conservation-based estate planning can help you save money on taxes.

Take the next step

APRIL 13, 2021 • 6:30-8:00

This working session will give landowners the opportunity to ask questions, hear from one another, and develop a plan to move forward.
